- Addiction/ Substance use disorder is not a choice and it is imperative that it be recognized as a medical condition. By doing so we can take an objective approach to tackling the root causes instead of our personal bias and beliefs clouding our approach . To have steps to tackle something we must identify and recognize its true nature.
- Time to put aside our own expectations of addiction and treating every individual with humanity and dignity. They put themselves down enough, it's our job as a community to lift them up.

We are amidst a community crisis.

We visually see its consequences through the ever increasing “Crosses for Change”.

We also see evidence on our streets, in our neighborhoods and the grim statistics on the PHSD Surveillance dashboard. The rates of addiction, overdoses, and deaths continue despite best efforts of many to stem the tide.

We know that this is a complex health and social issue where the response needs to be comprehensive, collaborative, compassionate and evidence-based.

Much has been committed to address this, yet current actions are simply not sufficient.

Let this Summit be the tipping point
